

Accessing Available Reports

Various types of reports for process definitions may be downloaded
There are two different types of reports available for downloading:

- Process documentation: The process documentation provides a general overview about a specific process definition. This report includes a description of the definition, the process model, and an overview of the associated activities as well as the activity-related tasks.
- Overview of instances: This report provides an overview of all instances that have been started by this definition. The report also documents which activity is currently in-progress for each instance as well as how many of the given tasks have already been completed.
